Harriet Winthrop belonged to the class of girls who bow to physical strength in the opposite sex. Full, almost flowerlike in her beauty, the sort of girl who had been protected and served all her life, she yet decorated her tiny morning room with etchings and small statuettes of classic heroes famed for their physical prowess, and she could sit through a veritable blitzard to watch a football match and shout herself hoarse for Ted's college team.

Ted was her brother, and he said that somewhere in Harriet's makeup was a strain from the blood of an ancestral belle who had cheered on her hero in the old tournament days, for the Winthrops could trace their lineage to the tournament days and further, and even though Mr. Winthrop had lost a large slice of the old family fortune through ill advised investments, they maintained their social standing, lived in rather severe but elegant fashion and held fast to every tradition, including the firm belief that no lady rides in a street car or other public conveyance.

She may walk abroad for exercise only, but when calling or shopping the plain, rather old-fashioned brougham of the departed Winthrop stables was brought into service.

That was why when many other girls with more money to spend on shopping tripped merrily up and down the great retail thoroughfare Harriet Winthrop chafed in a blockade of snarling motormen, sharp faced chauffeurs and obstinate cabbies. The brougham swung to one side, the wheels grating the curb, and Harriet leaned forward to see how close they were to the shop wherein could be found a certain piece of silvery blue gauze marked down to post holiday prices. Then, with a gasp and a shudder, she leaned back in the carriage and closed her eyes. She had forgotten the silvery gauze, the shop, the jam of vehicles—everything save the tall, square shouldered figure of a man, whose entire attention seemed to be centered on the bit of pancake he was turning in the window of a white front restaurant.

The brougham moved forward a few inches, then several feet. Very soon it would be out of range, so Harriet took one more glimpse at the window to make sure that her eyes had not deceived her. No, it was he, and this time he was actually handing the white aproned waitress a plate piled high with golden brown cakes.

What was Jerry Douglas doing in that window, and how could he bestow upon the white aproned girl precisely the same frank, cordial smile with which he had greeted her at that last dance, after Ted's team had been through Douglas' clever coaching?

She thought of Jerry Douglas had been cooking cakes to pay a wage. That night she went to a dance where many mutual friends gathered, but no one seemed to have heard of the escapade, and she was too proud to make inquiries. The next day she went back to the shop so close to the restaurant, a pale blue velvet ribbon would set off that silvery gauze, but she decided that, after all, she did not care whether the silver gauze was developed into a creation or not. Nothing mattered save that her idol had crumbled at her very feet or, more properly speaking, within a few feet of the wheels of her brougham, for there again was Jerry Douglas, turning what she thought must be very fat and indigestible fried biscuits.

So it was not an election wager or anything of that sort, Ah, she knew! He had gone in for sociology. He was studying the condition of the working classes. Next thing he would be living in one of those dreadful settlement houses, holding club meetings for ragamuffins and poor factory girls and writing silly things for magazines.

This man whom she had watched with bated breath on the football field, whom she had pictured as salting forth to pit his magnificent strength, physical and mental, against the magnates of the commercial and financial world.

Cooking cakes in a restaurant window! Harriet Winthrop walked with firm, deliberate step to her desk and took down from the wall above it a picture showing a group of lusty young men in football attire and also a certain individual pictured of a young man with a finely formed head and broad, square shoulders. She thrust the two behind some boxes on the top shelf of her clothespress and then sat down for a good cry.

Of course she might have found out what it all meant if Teddy had been home, but Teddy, after leaving college, had gone to Paris to follow up his studies in naval architecture. Anyhow it did not matter. Of course it had been only a girlish fancy, and then Jerry Douglas has acted rather strangely since he went back to his Virginia home—a few casual notes, no references to his future career, in which she had betrayed an interest, which she now felt was presumption and unmanly, and so she chafed some more.

And just after she had worked herself into a fine nervous state, from which she would issue forth pallid and forlorn, a messenger brought her a most amazing note. It was from Jerry Douglas, and it calmly invited Miss Winthrop to attend a little supper he was giving at the Empire restaurant in honor of his promotion. It would be served on the upper floor of the restaurant at Thursday midnight, after the rush was over, and would she please come, because Mrs. Ned Landers had agreed to act as chaperon and every one knew that Mrs. Ned was a host in herself.

Here was a perfectly legitimate avenue of inquiry which even the Winthrop pride might not hesitate to follow, so she bathed her eyes, summoned the Winthrop brougham and drove to Mrs. Ned Landers' smart studio apartment. Of course she could not accept the invitation, and she would not decline without making inquiries.

Mrs. Landers, shrewdly reading from the white, fired face that something had gone amiss, made tea directly, and Harriet sipped it appreciatively.

"You know, mother is a bit old fashioned," "The even disapproved of studio flats instead of houses?" Inquired Mrs. Landers, with dancing eyes.

"She thinks you are the most wonderful manager in the world, but a restaurant supper—I mean that particular sort of restaurant!"

"I understand, and I am just bubbling to tell every one for weeks, but Jerry Douglas made me cross my heart and swear no. My dear, he is a hero, the sort you don't often find in this day of spoiled millionaires and fawning parasites. When he finished his college course and collected a law with an old friend of his father's down in Virginia he made what was to him an awful discovery. His inheritance had paid only his bare expenses at college. All the little pleasures, accessories, the social end of her own handwork. She had been doing exquisite embroidery for a woman's exchange and a New York department store to keep him at college as his father and grandfather had been kept before him.

"It's first feeling, being a Virginia man of chivalric pride, was deep humiliation. I am afraid he was a bit hard on the little mother for daring to do so much for him. Then he turned his back on the law and came north, going straight to the father of a youngster he had known at college, the sort who roll in wealth made in a single generation. The boy's father has all sorts of commercial interests, including the Empire chain of quick lunch counters, and he promptly offered Jerry the chance to act as cashier in one of those dreadful lunch rooms."

Harriet was leaning forward, drinking in every word oblivious to the fact that Mrs. Ned was studying her face with narrowly amused eyes.

"Well, this particular lunch room was in a badly disorganized state, and Jerry not only made changes, but he fired the cook, who had been making trouble, and cooked himself until he could get a decent man. He stopped quarreling among the waitresses—and now he is going to Mexico for the man who was just trying him out in a lunch room, and who is more, he is going on a most ticklish and important mission."

Harriet leaned back with a sigh that might have meant reaction or something deeper.

"And so he has asked just six of us to have that little supper, for which he agrees to cook all sorts of things, from pancakes to something he calls butter cakes. Anyhow, it can't be worse for our digestion than some of the Newburg messes our friend makes in charging dishes. Will you go?"

Harriet rose instantly.

"If you won't think me abrupt, I'm going home this minute to telephone my acceptance."

Wise Mrs. Ned did not suggest that in her hallway was a telephone instrument, which Harriet had oftentimes used, and the girl went her way. Later as she hung up the telephone receiver in the Winthrop library her eyes seemed to shine like diamonds, and a soft flush mounted to her pale gold hair.

And from the library she went straight to her own room, climbed up to a clothespress shelf and lugged forth two photographs. Then, with her chair resting on the palms of her hands, she sat down, studying them with eyes that still shone with the light that once must have brightened the face of the ancestral belle at the tournament.

Bathing in the Ganges. At Benares before sunrise we went down the river where our boat waited, says a writer in the March Travel Magazine, and sat comfortably on the little cabin roof, kodaks in hand, and as the sun rose higher snapped groups of people so absorbed in their prayers that they hardly noticed us. At the more popular places were a mass of young and old who stood for a moment in the shallow water and then ducked under, emptying little trays of flowers or garlands as they did so till the surface of the water was covered thick. As new crowds constantly pressed forward any one who stayed under water more than a second was in danger of having another worshiper on his back. It was a great festival, and the estimated number of bathers was in the millions.

The Mystery Solved. "Why did love marry me, hullo!" cooed the foolish young married thing as it twined its arms about the neck of its husband.

"Well, you see, we'd been going together quite awhile, and you had begun to act this way, and I thought it was the only way I could get rid of you without a breach of promise suit."

And immediately he was off to bed for at least a day or two.—Judge.

MUSICAL TYRANTS.

Trials of the New York Hostess Who Hired Operatic Singers.

Not so very long ago a soprano who had been engaged to sing at one of the largest houses on Fifth avenue, with her maid, was ushered into the room reserved for the artists. She was slow in removing her wraps and concluded after she was part of the way out of them that it was time for the hostess to welcome her.

So she told her maid to put them on again after she had inquired of one of the servants where the lady was. When he saw the preparations for departure he rushed in haste to the hostess.

She had been detained at the dinner table, as a dinner of very elaborate character was preceding the musical. It was difficult for her to leave her guests. She reached the hall, however, just as the singer's ample form was disappearing through the portiere.

"Ah, Mrs. Smith," the singer said. "Then I am in the right house. I was going out to tell my coachman we had made a mistake, else you would have been at the door to meet me."

The hostess looked as if she would like to speed her flight into the open, but her guests were soon to arrive, and she did not dare risk offending the star attraction at her biggest party of the season.

Some of the singers make it a condition that no other woman shall be engaged and no musicians of any kind without consulting them. A young hostess sent out cards to invite her friends to hear a great prima donna sing. Afterward she heard from her friends of all kinds of wonderful performance that she might also have engaged.

As the money question played no part in her plans the young woman began to engage them. By the time the night of the party arrived she had, in addition to the soprano, a band of choir boys who would look beautiful marching down her marble stairway, a band of Venetian gondoliers who would be charming at the entrance to the music room, and a girl who would sing love songs in excellent French and a voice as soft as pomade, a girl who could pound the piano with the best of the men players and a quartet that played antique music on queer antique instruments.

The prima donna arrived and beheld in the artists' room this job lot of musical entertainers. The hostess hurried in to greet the soprano, a girl who could pound the piano with the best of the men players and a quartet that played antique music on queer antique instruments.

"But surely," the prima donna said, "you don't need me when you have so much for your guests?"

The singer was in earnest. She was perfectly willing to go home and lose her $3,000 fee rather than be part of such a musical vaudeville as the inexperienced hostess had planned. Out of gratitude because she consented to remain to make the party a success, the young man sent the prima donna a diamond bracelet the next day.—New York Sun.

The Spleen.

The spleen? Up to 1000 no physician dared to stand up in a clinic and tell what it was made for. For ages it was supposed to be the organ of lasciviousness. "Oh, his spleen is up!" meant that the old man was hot in the collar. Curious thing, that spleen. There is a herb called "spleenwort" which was supposed to remove such splenetic disorders as ill humor, melancholy and irritability. I saw a spleen the other day for the first time and was astounded. It was a soft, highly vascular, plum colored thing with a smooth surface. It was nearly six inches in length and weighed seven ounces. Now here is the funny feature of the spleen: After a hearty meal it is very much smaller than at other times, which may help to explain why a man is good natured after dinner. In diseased conditions the spleen may reach a weight of eighteen or twenty pounds.—New York Press.

Melinda Had to Go. One of the old governors of the Carolinas was a man who had lived a farmer's life most of the time until he was elected, and his wife, having never seen a steamboat or a railroad and having no wish to test either one, refused to accompany her husband to the capital. When the governor reached his destination, he found that at most all the other officials were accompanied by their wives, and he sent an imperative message to his brother to "fetch Melinda along." The brother telegraphed, "She's afraid even to look at the engine." The governor read the message and pondered over it for a few moments. At the end of that time he sent off the following command: "Bill, you blindfold Melinda and back her on to the train."

Warned.

Some years ago Miss Mabel Love was playing the title role in "Little Red Riding Hood" at Dublin. She was entering the room to visit her grandmother in bed when an excited and anxious little voice shouted from the gallery: "Stop, stop! It isn't your grandmother. It's a wolf."

The house burst into a storm of applause and laughter at the child's innocent alarm for the safety of the little maiden in the red hood.

A Great Relief.

"Lady," said Mendez Mike, "do you want any wood cut?" "No," was the sharp answer. "No chokes of any kind, either?" "No."

"In that case I feel relieved. I kin take a chance on askin' you for something to eat."—Washington Star.

Samuel Ogden was the first English owner of the land on which Ogdenburg, N. Y., is now built.

WORKING A SWINDLE.

Clever Scheme Carried Through by a Plausible Woman.

An elegantly dressed Spanish lady one day visited a specialist in mental diseases in Madrid on behalf of her husband, who, she said, was a sufferer from religious mania. Having explained the case, it was arranged that she should return in about an hour with the afflicted husband.

The lady's next scene of action was a jeweler's shop in another part of the city, where she selected diamonds to the value of $5,000 on the understanding that she would buy them if her husband approved. Would some one accompany her home in a cab and with him the lady drove back to the doctor's house. In an anteroom she took the stones "just to show them to her husband." Then, entering with smiling assurance the doctor's study, she informed the specialist that her husband was now in the anteroom and ready to be examined.

Leaving a visiting card, the lady took her departure, and the doctor, bidding the supposed patient enter, proceeded at his leisure to ask professional questions. The jeweler's man was puzzled at first, but soon he realized that he had been made the victim of a clever fraud. The doctor, however, interpreted his agitation as caused by his complaint, and when after two hours more he was finally explained the lady impostor had vanished with her spoils without leaving any trace.—London Tit-Bits.

CATARACT OF THE EYE. How the One It Attacks May Watch the Obstruction Grow.

Cataract is said to be due to the gradual deposition of oxalate of lime in the substance of the crystalline lens, at first in small spots or streaks, sometimes in one part and sometimes in another. The deposit gradually increases until it penetrates the whole of the lens, causing blindness. The remedy, then, is to remove the lens, and after its removal the patient needs a substitute in the form of highly magnifying spectacles.

All that is necessary to enable a patient to see his own cataract for himself is a piece of card and a needle. A visiting card will do very well. Pierce a clean round hole near the middle of the card and hold the card up to the light close to the eye, looking preferably in the direction of a piece of blue sky. With the card near the eye the patient will not see the small hole pierced by the needle, but he will see a comparatively large, faintly illuminated field with his cataract projected upon it. He is, in fact, observing the shadow cast by his cataract on to the card at the back of his eye. With a small puncture in the card the shadow so thrown is comparatively sharp. But with a normal eye an evenly illuminated field or clean disk will be seen. The patient may thus map down his own cataract and settle for himself whether it is extending and whether he will have an operation or not.

The Traveler's Tree Myth. Among the fantastic stories of far-off lands that have long maintained their circulation and commanded more or less belief is that of the "traveler's tree," credited with possessing a reservoir of pure water fitted to save the lives of wanderers in the desert. G. F. Scott Elliot declares from his own experience that the tree grows only in the neighborhood of swamps or springs, and that although it has a considerable amount of water in a hollow at the base of its leaf, the water possesses a disagreeable vegetable taste and is of course inferior to other water to be found in the vicinity.—Youth's Companion.

That our American forests abound in plants which possess the most valuable medicinal virtues is abundantly attested by scores of the most eminent medical writers and teachers. Even the untutored Indians had discovered the usefulness of many native plants before the advent of the white race. This information, imparted freely to the whites, led the latter to continue investigations until to-day we have a rich assortment of most valuable American medicinal roots.

Pierce believes that our American forests abound in most valuable medicinal roots for the cure of most obstinate and fatal diseases. If we would properly investigate them; and in connection of this conviction, he points with pride to the almost marvelous cures effected by his "Golden Medical Discovery," which has proven itself to be the most efficient stomach tonic, liver invigorator, heart tonic and regulator, and blood cleanser known to medical science. Dyspepsia, or indigestion, torpid liver, functional and even valvular and other affections of the heart yield to its curative action. The reason why it is so effective in all these ailments, is clearly shown in a little book of extracts from the standard medical works which is mailed free to any address by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Littleton, N. Y., to all sending request for the same.

Not less marvellous, in the unparalleled cures it is constantly making of women's many peculiar ailments, weakness and distressing derangements, is Dr. Pierce's "Purification of the Blood," which is amply attested by thousands of unimpeachable testimonials contributed by grateful patients who have been cured by it of catarrh of the pelvic organs, painful periods, irregularities, leukorrhea and other displacements caused by weakness, ulceration of uterine and kindred affections, often after many other untried medicines, and physicians had failed.

Both the above mentioned medicines are wholly made up of the glyceric extracts of native medicinal roots. The processes employed in their manufacture were original with Dr. Pierce, and are carried on by skilled chemists and pharmacists with the aid of apparatus and appliances specially designed and built for this purpose. Bulk medicines are entirely free from alcohol and all other harmful habit-forming drugs. A full list of their ingredients is printed on each bottle wrapper.

An Editorial Treatment Of Appendicitis.

The discussion which arose recently in San Francisco over the success and necessity of surgical operations for appendicitis leaves the layman as much in the dark as ever. The eminent gentlemen of the medical profession discussed it pro and con but the majority of those interviewed declared that the doctor who tabooed the knife was all wrong. We would like to believe he was right, but it seems too inhuman to believe that operations for appendicitis are money making schemes.

The dread disease is even a matter of conjecture, phonetically speaking, for when the doctor pronounces a case appendi(c)i(tis) we wonder if he should not have called it appendi(ce)tis. The writer in discussing the term with an old and eminent practitioner of San Francisco got a humorous explanation of the difference in pronunciation. In the mansions of the rich, a doctor is prompted to say appendicitis and tonsillitis, but in more modest homes he affects the old fashioned and more homely pronouncements.

The uncertainties concerning the various attributes of this much puzzling malady should be put in the hands of a non-biased but scientifically experienced board of inquiry. We cannot expect to get the honest opinion of medical men whose bread and butter depends on the pronouncing of appendicitis.

Should the percentage of fatal operations increase, we will find the death notices in our papers ending with such words as these: "For further particulars see appendix."

The New Man.

It is a curious fact that "old" woman has come to be a derogatory term while "elderly" is quite acceptable to the fair sex—wherefore men past fifty are now the older men instead of the less variable, plain and painful old. It is said that women never acknowledge a birthday after a certain limit, for which reason Dr. Osler did not theorize concerning this period, which does not exist. As to the men who were proud of their maturity and well seasoned experience and were pleased to dwell on their fifty years of wisdom, he took down much of their pride by his theoretical decree. Now men are loathe to acknowledge their years, yet nothing is so refreshing as an old man with a new wrinkle—not the scar of time, but the new idea which cuts in deep enough to affect the actions of one supposed to be past his prime. Men supposed to be in the Osler class are doing things every day that go to show that the world would miss many a work of art or wonderful achievement if life were curtailed and men past fifty relegated to obscurity. Osler's jolt has awakened the old boys and if any of them were cobwebbed before the dissemination of that theory they have been house cleaning since and are all rejuvenated.

For the improvement in outward appearances and the snatching off of skull cap and the putting on of boquet we must credit the ladies, for the older men would not be outdone by our modern elderly lady of fashion, who long since put a ban on cap, shawls, knitting and rocking chairs. Her running mate must of necessity be as epic and span an old gentleman as she is a lady. The old people of to-day are wonders.

THE ACQUISITION of a California sulphur springs property by the rich and influential Collier, the Eastern publisher, is encouraging to Sonoma Valley whose resources in this respect will yet make themselves known and bring us world wide fame and undreamed of prosperity.

NO WONDER Petaluma is soured on prize fighting. There is a vinegar factory in sight over there. We would like to comment on the situation but refrain for fear of a tart reply.

Extension of Service.

Both the Sunset and Rural telephone companies have been extending their lines the past few weeks. The former company is extending its service west of Sonoma, the new subscribers being E. T. Allen, D. L. Smith, Albert Rambo, John McNeil, Capt. H. E. Boyes, A. Gowan and Albert Geisselmann. The rural service, which is being extended eastward, has taken in the past week six new subscribers as follows: A. B. Pehrson of the McIntosh ranch, Carl Dresel, Gundlach-Bundschu company, Charles Potter, Mrs. Joseph Potter and P. H. Thompson.

Both companies will continue to extend their lines the present summer and it is only a matter of time when every resort and farm house throughout the valley will have its telephone service.

ELECTRIC RAILWAY PROMOTERS HERE.

Talk Business and Say
Sonoma Will Have the Road All Right.

J. M. Gardner, president of the National Cement Company and president of the Monterey Electric Railroad Company, Dr. Bertheau, a capitalist of San Francisco, R. Kellogg, the well known engineer, accompanied by Oscar T. Weber, arrived in town Wednesday afternoon by automobile from San Francisco. The run was made in Dr. Bertheau's touring car, one of the finest on the Pacific Coast. During their sojourn here the gentlemen were the guests of Mr. S. Schocken. These gentlemen are all interested in the projected rock crushing plant and electric railroad which enterprises are being promoted by Messrs. Schocken and Weber.

In an interview which was accorded the INDEX-TRIBUNE scribe he was assured that the rock crushing plant and electric railroad project will materialize all right and it is only a question of time when both will be in full swing in this valley, as the scheme has already the necessary financial backing to carry it through.

Agua Caliente Springs Hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodor Richards of the Agua Caliente Springs Hotel, in anticipation of a large number of visitors to their popular resort this summer, are better prepared than ever before to cater to the wants of those seeking rest and recreation in our beautiful valley. Mr. and Mrs. Richards have invested thousands of dollars in their resort, with the result that it is today one of the best appointed bathing and summer resorts north of San Francisco. That this resort is appreciated not only by visitors from abroad but by our home people no better evidence is wanted than the large number of the latter that visit these springs on Sundays and other days in the week for a rejuvenating bath and a dinner that would satisfy the most exacting of epicures.

End of Glen Ellen's Right of Way Road Suit.

Superior Judge Emmet Seawell on Thursday morning signed the final decree of condemnation in the suit instituted by Sonoma county for a right of way for a public road over the lands of Annie Uhl and other non-consenting land owners in Glen Ellen township. A motion for a new trial was also denied the defendants.

The Board of Supervisors appointed viewers in regular form, the viewers made their report and suggested the award of damages to the Uhl's. They refused to accept the award made by the Supervisors and a condemnation suit was brought. The defendants were awarded $230, divided up among the Uhl heirs.

New Dry Goods Store.

Their advertisement will appear in next week's issue.

Build Temporary Bridge.

The enterprising citizens of El Verano, tiring of the delay of the Board of Supervisors in repairing the county bridge which crosses Sonoma Creek at that place, have subscribed both money and labor toward the erection of a temporary structure which is now about completed. This will answer all the requirements until the rains of next season set in, before which time it is to be hoped the Supervisors will have had the damage to the iron bridge repaired and the same opened to traffic.

HELD TO ANSWER ON SERIOUS CHARGE.

Sequel to the Sale of the Romo Hotel Property in This City.

Antone Aquistopace, former owner of the Romo Hotel in this place, was arrested Saturday by Deputy Sheriff Joe Ryan, on complaint of E. Zugnoni who charged the defendant with obtaining money under false pretenses.

Aquistopace was arraigned before Judge Small, who held him to answer to the charge before the Superior Court of this county in a bond of $500, which was furnished by the defendant.

The charge of obtaining money under false pretenses against Aquistopace is the outcome of the sale of the Romo Hotel a few months ago. Zugnoni bought out the stock and fixtures of that hostelry, paying the defendant $750 for the same, who represented there was no indebtedness against them. In course of time, it is alleged by the complainant, bills to the amount of $240, due on the stock and fixtures which he had bought in good faith, were presented to him for payment. This was not to the liking of Zugnoni, hence the arrest.

THE MAIONCHI- NICHELINI LAW SUIT.

Judge Denny Hands Down Decision Denying Defendant a New Trial.

The Maionchi-Nichelini suit which has been dragging its slow length along in the various courts of the State these many years, bobbed up once again in Judge Denny's department of the Superior Court last Wednesday, when his Honor handed down a decision denying defendant Nichelini's motion for a new trial. This does not end this remarkable case by any means as it is understood an appeal will be taken to the State Supreme Court. Maionchi, the plaintiff in the case, has long been an inmate of the Napa Insane Asylum, and the suit was brought by his guardian, L. Modini of this place, to recover some $1800 belonging to Maionchi and which he assigned to F. Nichelini under a written agreement to take care of him so long as he lived. About a year after entering into the agreement Maionchi was declared insane and the present suit followed.

Judge Denny in denying the motion for a new trial, says:

"The question involved is as to what is the law of the case as determined by the Supreme Court in its decision of this case. * * * The meaning of the court is hard to determine, because it seems as if in its decision denying a rehearing of the matter, that it has reversed itself. In the first decision the court said:

"Even if it could be considered as a judgment for decision, however, there is no finding as to the facts essential to support such a finding, and if there was such a finding, there is no evidence in the record to support it."

"Defendant claims that this is the law of the case, and that there is no evidence to support the findings as to recission. If the Appellate Court had rested there, defendant's claim would be justified. But upon petition for rehearing the court said:

"We did not intend to be understood as holding that there is no evidence to support a judgment of recission. The evidence is entirely sufficient to do so."

"It is certainly confusion worse confounded. First, the evidence is not sufficient to support judgment for recission, and then it is entirely sufficient to do so. What is the law in the case?"

"The second opinion of the court, being its last expression on the matter, seems to me to be the law of the case, and a direction that when the findings are so corrected as to support a judgment for recission that the lower court is to enter up such a judgment. I do not think this court can go behind that mandate. The decision is that the evidence is sufficient to do so, and the findings support such a judgment."

"It is therefore ordered that the defendant's motion for a new trial be and the same is hereby denied."

K., as it always has been conducted, as a first class saloon, where reliable wines, liquors and the best brand of cigars will be dispensed to the public.

GLEN ELLEN By Aurora.

The season so far has been most favorable for our bee-keepers.

Miss Emma Woods and Mrs. Delmar went to Sonoma on a pleasure trip Monday.

Messrs. Lemoine and Weise were re-elected Trustees of the Dunbar public school at the recent election.

Work in the vineyards and orchards in this vicinity has been going ahead with a rush the past week and men and teams are at a premium.

Clarence Merlinojones, son of Mr. and Mrs. I. M. Merlinojones, has been up from Oakland the past week visiting his uncle, Leo Justi. He had a good time and the measles while here.

Mrs. M. A. Zane of this place, widow of the late J. M. Zane, has petitioned the Superior Court to have the homestead vested in her name. Attorney A. B. Ware represents the petitioner.

The children of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Poppe have been down with the measles. Notwithstanding the general belief that this disease attacks a child but once, some of the children are recovering from a second attack.

Seven queens were seen to issue from one of Allen Youngman's bee hives, one day this week. They had been imprisoned by the workers with lumps of wax, but in the excitement of swarming they all chewed a way to liberty. The empty cells told the whole story. Bee-keepers all know that only one queen can remain free in a hive.

E. M. Gender, formerly proprietor of the Cottage saloon in this place, but who is now conducting a roadside resort a few miles this side of Santa Rosa, was arrested Saturday, charged with giving liquor to a minor. He pled not guilty to the charge before Judge Atchinson and was admitted to bail in the sum of $100. S. Graham, a livery stable keeper of the City of Roses, is the complainant, and alleges his son became intoxicated with liquor given him by the defendant, who strenuously denies the accusation.

Hon. Duncan E. McKinlay sent six tea plants from the agricultural department at Washington to the Dunbar Improvement Club last winter. The plants were parceled out between four of the members, Messrs. Weise, Justi, Woods and Youngman, who have entered into a novel contest. A prize has been selected and will be awarded to the man who first produces the leaves from his bush with which to make a cup of tea. The contest promises to be one of the most unique ever held in these parts. If there is anything in a name, even though old Bill Shakespeare says there is not, the "wise" man in this tea contest ought to win out, notwithstanding one of his competitors is a "youngman."

Home-made Catarrh Cure

Any one can mix right at home the best remedy of its kind known. The name "Cyclone" is given to the following prescription, it is supposed, because of its promptness in driving from the blood and system every vestige of catarrhal poison, relieving this foul and dread disease no matter where located. To prepare the mixture: Get from any good pharmacy one-half ounce Fluid Extract of Dandelion one ounce of Compound Kargon and three ounces Compound Syrup of Sarsaparilla. Shake well and use in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime.

This is a harmless, inexpensive mixture, which has a peculiar action upon the eliminative tissues of the kidneys assisting them to filter and strain from the blood and system all catarrhal poisons, which, if not eradicated, are absorbed by the mucous membrane, and an open sore or catarrh is the result.

Prepare some and try it, as it is the prescription of an eminent catarrh specialist of national reputation.

BOYISH DESIRE FOR WORK.

Often a Sign of Arrested Development Instead of Strength.

Parents often think that their son is especially promising because he wants to get to work young, wants to leave school and be earning. This is never a sign of strength, but always of weakness. When a boy wants to get to work instead of getting ready to work it indicates arrested development.

There is not one probability in fifty that a boy who desires to leave school at the sixth grade and is allowed to do so will ever amount to anything. It is not the fact that he does not have as much education as the other boys, but that he does not have their purpose to get ready for the doing of things.

Teachers often greatly err in dealing with such boys and their parents by trying to show them the importance of that they should know what they will learn in the seventh and eighth grades, whereas that is the least part of it. It is a case of arrested development usually, and this is what should be treated, treated as a disease.

We make a lot of talk about defective sight and hearing, and we do well, but it is vastly more important that we "get busy" in the defective mental progressive development of a near-sightedness of parents and pupils that is criminal. It contributes to delinquency and, as I think, is within the status of, and subject to court punishment.

It sometimes shows itself in diverted attention, in dissipated interest and often in overathletic or fraternity zeal.

The college theory is that the fraternity chips are the elect, but life does not show that. The data are imperfect at present, but there is enough to make it wholly probable that when the figures are in it will be clearly shown that in the last fifteen years when fraternity life has been extra social and extra political in clamorishness with the arrested development. It is entirely clear already that this is characteristic of the high school fraternity, because it almost invariably means that a set of fellows dare not trust themselves to win honors in the open contest, but seek it as a favoritism by means of a little band of social highwaymen, as many of these high school fraternities are.—Journal of Education.

ANCIENT ARMIES.

Italy a little before Hannibal's time was able to send into the field nearly 1,000,000 men.

The army of Tera, king of Ethiopia, consisted of 1,000,000 men and 300 chariots of war.

Hannibal during his campaign in Italy and Spain plundered 40 towns and destroyed 300,000 men.

Sesostris, king of Egypt, led against his enemies 600,000 men, 24,000 cavalry and twenty-seven scythed armoured chariots in 1491 B. C.

The city of Thebes had a hundred gates and could send out at each gate 10,000 fighting men and 200 chariots—in all, 1,000,000 men and 2,000 chariots.

Hannibal went from Carthage and landed near Palermo. He had a fleet of 2,000 ships and 3,000 small vessels, and a land force of 300,000 men. At the battle in which he was defeated 150,000 were slain.

"Home" in Our Language.

In no other language, according to the London Telegraph, is there a word expressing the ideas and associations which are aroused at the sound of the simple yet heart touching word "home." A Frenchman once translated Cardinal Newman's hymn, "Lead, Kindly Light," and in his hands the beautiful line, "The night is dark, and I am far from home," became "La nuit est sombre, et je suis loin de mon foyer," the translator having been obliged to use for home the French word which describes the green room of a theater. The Italian and Spanish "casa," the German "haus"—their "heim" is too general to have any particular value—and the Russian "doma" all refer to a building of some kind or other and have none of the memories and associations that cluster round the precious English word.

Horses on Snow Shoes.

Horses wear snowshoes in Dakota in winter. These equipped, they trot lightly over drifts where they would otherwise sink out of sight. In some parts of Dakota the snow lies all winter long eight or ten feet deep, but a crust forms on it, and with snowshoes men skim over it easily. So do snowshod horses. The equine snowshoes are made of boards twenty inches long and fourteen inches wide. An indentation to fit the foot is branded on each board with a hot horseshoe, and the contrivance is fastened on to the hoof with an iron clamp and a bolt. After a day or two of practice a Dakota horse becomes an expert snowshoer.

The Line Was Busy.

"Why can't I get my number?" demanded the man.

"Line's busy," replied the telephone girl.

"I don't believe it."

"It's so just the same. Some cow boys have borrowed it to hang a horse thief with."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Distinction.

"What is grand opera as distinct from light opera?"

"Oh, you pretend to appreciate one, but you can appreciate the other."—Philadelphia Ledger.

How German Beats English.

"We speakers of English," said a lecturer, "are handicapped by our language. We can never hope for such sonorous titles as the Germans have."

"A young German matron once said: 'Ach, how glad I am that my dear Fritz has been appointed hauptkassenverwaltungsassistent—assistant cashier. Now,' she went on, 'in my title of hauptkassenverwaltungsassistentin—chief cashier of five letters more than that proud oberhofstenamtsinspectorin—excise inspector's wife—can claim.'"

Why the Market Wobbles.

The financial balance is so extremely delicate that the slightest movement affects it and throws it out of gear. I once heard of an important "deal" being spilt because a prominent financier had his big toe cut by a chiropractor so badly that he was obliged to keep his room—Maurice Mortimer in Grand Magazine.

Apples as "Nightcaps."

An Easy Mark.

"Sir, I am an old member on the bourse. I took shares in all your companies and am now ruined, so I thought perhaps you would employ me in your office."

"Oh, no; I want only intelligent men in my business."—Bon Vivant.

The Other Way.

"If I were younger," said the rich old man, "I believe I might win you for my wife."

"Yes," replied the cold beauty, dreamily considering his sixty years, "or, say, fifteen or twenty years older."—Philadelphia Press.

Grip Quickly Knocked Out

"Some time ago during the severe winter weather both my wife and myself contracted severe colds which speedily developed into the worst kind of grippe with all its miserable symptoms." Mrs. J. S. Eggleston of Maple Landing, Iowa, writes: "My wife's cold, cough, sore throat, and joints aching, muscles sore, head stopped up, eyes and nose running, with alternate spells of chills and fever. We began using Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, adding the same with a double dose of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets, and by its liberal use soon completely knocked out the grip. Sold by L. S. Simmons."

Rheumatism Makes Life Miserable.

A happy home is the most valuable possession that is within the reach of mankind, but you cannot enjoy its comforts if you are suffering from rheumatism. You throw aside business cares when you enter your home and you can be relieved from those rheumatic pains also by applying Chamberlain's Pain Balm. One application will give you relief and its continued use for a short time will bring about a permanent cure. For Sale by L. S. Simmons.

Infection.
The wife of an army officer at a western post recently had occasion to visit a small neighboring town to do some shopping at what is called the general store. She was much entertained by the variety and antiquity of the stock of goods, and as she passed out her eyes were attracted by a pile of mottoes, elaborately lettered and ornately framed, the upper one being the Scriptural passage, "Walk in love."

As she paused the clerk, a dapper young man of more affability than advantages, stepped forward with the remark: "There are the latest things in mottoes. This top one is swell to put over a young lady's door—'Walk in love.'"—Lippincott's.

Good Judgment

is the essential characteristic of men and women. Invaluable to good business men and necessary to housewives. A woman shows good judgment when she buys White's Cream Vermorel for her baby. The best word medicine ever offered to mothers, many indeed are the sensible mothers who write expressing their gratitude for the good health of their children, which they owe to the use of White's Vermorel.
